

Maddie worked in Human Resources for 6 years before embarking on a career change and commencing a Master of Occupational Therapy Practice at La Trobe University in January 2024.

Maddie decided to make the move to study Occupational Therapy as she was seeking a career that allowed her to make positive and meaningful contributions to other people's lives. As a creative person, Maddie was also attracted to the fact that Occupational Therapists can use creativity in their approaches and problem solving.

Maddie really values building genuine relationships with others and being able to support people to achieve goals. In her spare time, you will find Maddie cooking, tending to her veggie patch or working on a new piece on her pottery wheel.
